

Quality Fabricators and Distributors of Corrosion Resistant Metals Since 1913

MEMO

DATE: March 25, 2020
TO: Whom it May Concern
FROM: Robin Murphy RM
Human Resources Manager
SUBJECT: Alaskan Copper and its employees are part of the essential critical infrastructure

Alaskan Copper & Brass Company and Alaskan Copper Works ("Alaskan Copper") have reviewed and are continuously monitoring the various national, state and local government orders and regulations related to the COVID-19/Novel Coronavirus Pandemic. We have learned that we are an "essential business" as a provider of essential products or services or by operating in support of other essential businesses. Alaskan Copper employees are thus essential critical infrastructure workers as designated by the United States Department of Homeland Security.

Accordingly, Alaskan Copper will remain open and fully operational as a distributor, manufacturer and fabricator of corrosion-resistant metal products supporting a wide range of customers including those in the defense, food and agriculture, transportation and logistics, energy, water and wastewater and public works industries, among others.

Alaskan Copper's employees are therefore exempt from governmental "shelter in place", "stay at home", travel and similar restrictions while performing or traveling to or from the performance of Alaskan Copper's business activities.

The bearer of this letter may be an Alaskan Copper employee performing or traveling to or from Alaskan Copper's business activities.

Thank you in advance for your cooperation and assistance. Please call (206)-382-8428 if you have any questions.
